

Life After Freedom: Maryland's African American Communities During Reconstruction and Beyond

Presented by Krystal Appiah
Laurel Municipal Pool Room
9th and Main Street
March 8, 2012
7:00 pm
FREE

Join IMLS Fellow, Krystal Appiah, for a presentation on the research she has conducted at the Maryland State Archives.

During the 1870s and 1880s, African Americans in Maryland embraced the post-Emancipation era by claiming new educational opportunities, asserting their political rights, and building vibrant communities. This talk will focus on the collections of the Maryland State archives to examine the era's African American life in Prince George's County and throughout the state.

Co-Sponsored by the Laurel Historical Society and the Maryland State Archives

817 Main Street, Laurel, MD 20707
www.laurelhistoricalsociety.org
info@laurelhistoricalsociety.org

350 Rowe Boulevard, Annapolis, MD 21401
www.mdslavery.net
uggr@mdsa.net

